HOOVER SAYS PRICE LEVEL ON INCREASE

President Asserts Hoarding of Money Has Ceased and Recovery at Hand

Great Britain Today Pays Back 100 Millions to United States and France

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(UP)—President Hoover's optimistic announcement of an improvement in the credit situation served today to bolster up confidence and strengthen the growing belief the country has turned the corner toward recovery from the business depression.

Hoarding of money has ceased, the president said. Bank failures are diminishing. Withdrawal of gold to foreign countries has slowed down. Prices of wheat and cotton are rising. To these signs, other officials added an increase in the general commodity price level in the past three weeks, a noticeable pickup in retail trade, a steadying of the stock market.

The turn for the better has come, as was anticipated, since the president announced his financial national credit corporation as an immediate agency to clear up and broaden the credit structure by congressional action.

The president gave credit to the program he formulated and laid before congressional leaders on October 7, as did other officials here, who have privately watched a trend in the last few days that gave them hope. It was left for President Hoover to express it.

"I am happy to note the very great change which is evident in

TEAR BOMBS USED TO BREAK UP RIOT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Police tossed 125 tear bombs and threw the business district into turmoil while battling a crowd of 500 men and women who sought to hold a mass meeting in the Philharmonic auditorium last night.

Thousands of pedestrians and motorists were "gassed" when a light wind spread the fumes throughout the district.

Traffic was stalled when motorists abandoned their automobiles. Hotel guests, patrons of picture shows, restaurants and other places of business fled to the streets. Men, women and children ran in all directions to escape the gas.

The gas became so thick that the manager of the Biltmore hotel, one of the city's most fashionable hostilities, ordered all windows sealed.

The trouble started when a crowd gathered with the intention of holding a meeting in Philharmonic auditorium. Police refused to permit the meeting. They said it had been arranged by Communists.

10 CHILDREN VISIT MOTHER IN PRISON

HANFORD, Calif., Oct. 31.—(UP)—Mrs. Bertha Alvino, 54, mother of 17 children, held a family reunion today in the jail cell where she is serving 125 days for bootlegging.

Mrs. Alvino, who has resided here for 40 years, forgot her troubles amid the happy family circle composed of the 10 children who are still living.

She was convicted of liquor selling charges last summer and was sentenced to six months. She was let out on probation in a short time. A second charge was preferred against her this week. She pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 125 days or a $250 fine. Unable to pay the fine, she went to jail.

ACCEPTANCE OF ARMS TRUCE IS ON CONDITIONS

United States Sends Note to League Accepting with Reservations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Two "ifs" conditioned America's acceptance of the League of Nations' invitation to join in a one-year arms holiday.

The United States is ready and willing to take this step, provided that other principal military and naval powers do so and that the truce shall not apply to construction already begun or under contract.

These reservations were set forth in the note of acceptance dispatched last night to Geneva. State department officials are highly confident they will meet the approval of the other nations as the points have already been under discussion, with agreement indicated.

The text of the note was made public today, as follows:

ARCHBISHOP HANNA IS AWARDED MEDAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, leading Catholic prelate in the west, has been awarded the annual medal of the national commission on good will between Jews and Christians. It was announced today.

A commission of 53 judges unanimously selected Archbishop Hanna for the award "because his active promotion of the movement has been a great influence in its progress during 1931."

Last year's recipient of the award, sometimes called the American Hebrew medal, was Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war.

Notified of his selection, Archbishop Hanna said he considered it "one of the most signal honors that has ever been conferred upon me."

ELEVEN MEMBERS OF ROYALTY DROWNED

LUANG PRABANG, French Indo China, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Eleven members of the Indo-Chinese royal family were drowned today when two servants when the royal barge struck a submerged rock in the Mekong river. The names of the victims were not made known. None of the bodies was recovered.

French Minister of Colonies Paul Reynaud wired his condolences to the king, in residence here.

Missing Fresno Youth Is Sought

FRESNO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—A search for spectacular, serious-minded Buddy Hobbs, 15, missing a week, had grown to statewide proportions today as all his known haunts here in the Sierras and in coast cities and resorts failed to reveal him.

The junior high school student dropped from sight without warning and without leaving any indication of preparations for a runaway adventure.

At first it was thought likely he had gone to one of the mountain resorts his family visits, or to Santa Cruz, but his father, H. H. Hobbs, a wholesale produce man, said investigations of those places had been fruitless.

State police, all American Legion posts in the state and all Southern Pacific railroad employees have been notified to watch for the boy.

Out came a long water moccasin, alive.

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD BOY GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Fresno Orphan Convicted By Jury of Murdering Rival for Girl

FRESNO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—A 15-year-old orphan, Jesus Borja, who attended the wedding of his successful rival in love and then killed him, faced life imprisonment today on his conviction of murder.

Jesus betrayed little emotion as the jury brought in its verdict, but there were tears in the eyes of Rose Guerrero, 13, the girl who was made a widow on her marriage day.

The jury of nine men and three women, after deliberating three hours, found Jesus guilty of the fatal stabbing of Pedro Garcia, 22. Life imprisonment must be his sentence, since a state law prohibits capital punishment for minors of Jesus' age.

The principal witnesses against Jesus were the girl-widow and Rafael Herrera, who served the victim of the wedding murder as best man. It was their dramatic story of the marriage ceremony, followed by the knife attack while the happy couple posed for a picture, that broke down Jesus' defense.

Jesus repudiated a confession offered by the state and claimed he had not been responsible for his act because he has "the mind of a boy of 10."

"I don't know why I did it," he told the jury over and over again.

"I didn't even know Garcia."

"But Rose promised to marry me. We were going to be happy. Then she married Garcia. I just went crazy."

"The wedding was just a blank in my mind. I don't remember how it all happened. Suddenly I saw Rose standing there in her bridal dress and the next thing I knew I was being led out of the wedding."

SIX FIREMEN ARE OVERCOME IN FIRE

FRESNO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Six firemen were recovering today from campfire fumes and smoke and two others from minor wounds, the aftermath of a $15,000 fire in the W. R. Holmes Express company warehouse last night.

The campfire had been placed to prevent moths from damaging stored furniture.

The fire, at H and Merced streets, was believed to have started from spontaneous combustion.

The blaze was kept under control to the extent of preventing damage other than from smoke to a rooming house above the storage space.

Fire Captain C. E. McKinney was injured above the left eye and Truckman J. H. Hall in addition to being overcome by smoke suffered irritation to his eyes.

JOHNSON HITS AT HOOVER FOR LEAGUE POLICY

California Senator Says United States Dragged Into Squabble

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Sen. Hiram Johnson, of California, in a statement for talking pictures, made public here, today had demanded that the voters of the nation repudiate President Hoover's policy toward the league of nations.

By entering the League of Nations council meets on the Chinese Japanese dispute, Johnson asserted, "The administration takes us into Europe's political controversy in violation of the constitution and in defiance of the people's will."

"The only remedy left the people against their betrayers is the ballot box," he said.

Johnson's statement also lashed at Japan, which he accused of taking part of Manchuria and of "violating every treaty designed to promote peace."

Johnson's statement follows:

"After 12 years, our country, so far as the present administration could involve us, has been finally jockeyed and juggled into the League of Nations. It is pretended, of course, that we sacrifice nothing of our independence, but when you sit in an official body as part of it and participate in its proceedings, you are in honor bound to see it through. It was not necessary for us to join the League of Nations to write an individual note to Japan about the Kellogg piffling pact."

"There is no real war in the Orient, because you can't have war between a chopstick and a

ROLPH'S CONDITION REPORTED IMPROVED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Continued improvement in the condition of Gov. James Rolph Jr. of California was reported today from St. Francis hotel, where he is recovering from a severe cold.

Dr. John Galloway, the governor's physician, said that Rolph was clearing up and that Rolph probably would be able to resume his duties in a week.

"The governor is physically exhausted from his strenuous activities," Dr. Galloway said, "and is principally in need of a rest."

The "no visitors" edict was continued in force and only members of the governor's family were permitted to see him.

Steel Takes Jump; Oils Also Strong

Amusements Continue to Be in Demand—Mail Order Shares Advance

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Bolstered up by another spurt in wheat which made new seasonal highs, the stock market ended the week with a firm tone. Prices were up fractions to 2 points in most issues. Volume was about the same as last Saturday with sales around 700,000 shares.

Toward the close a demonstration occurred in the oils which took the place of the rails as the foremost group. The latter sagged off from their highs. Utilities held gains ranging to a point with the exception of Electric Power & Light which was the principal weak spot in the previous session.

Steel common rose a point and other industrials were up fractions to more than a point. Amusements continued in demand. Harvester and Mail order shares profited by the rise in grains.

Cotton firmed up a few points along with grains. Bonds were quiet but prices held well with United States issues rising small mounts after early irregularity.

Petroleum shares were helped by publication of the bureau of mines report for September showing sharp reduction in inventories of oil and gasoline. Production of crude oil declined in September.

Standard of New Jersey led the oils, rising nearly a point. According to preliminary calculations the Dow Jones & Co. industrial average stood at 105.45, up 1.48 points; rail average 52.19, off .21 point, and utility average at 40.51, up .98 point.

Sales totaled 805,175 shares, compared with 757,550 shares last Saturday.

HUSBAND AND WIFE FEDERAL PRISONERS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—(UP)—A man identified by police as Louis L. Ross, alias William L. Lane, 37, who assertedly jumped bond in San Francisco a year ago after being charged with grand theft of United States mail, was under arrest here today.

His wife, Dorothy Ross, 30, also was held on suspicion of burglary. They were booked as George Taylor and Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, the names they assertedly used while living in a luxurious apartment here.

Detectives reported they found numerous typewriters, clocks, and miscellaneous pieces of jewelry worth more than $5000 in the couple's apartment.

Contest Flops For Lack Of Milk Maids

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 31.—(UP)—The best publicity feature of Minnesota's homecoming "flop" today because coeds don't know how to milk cows they used to in the good old days.

As one of the highlights, the homecoming committee planned a contest between Minnesota and Wisconsin coeds in milking cows. The badgers gleefully accepted a challenge since they are a leading dairy state in the union.

Then no Minnesota milkmaids could be found in the university and the contest was dropped from the program.

NAN BRITTON TRIAL IS ADJOURNED TODAY

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 31.—(UP)—Trial of Nan Britton's libel suit against C. A. Klunk, Marion, O., hotelkeeper, was adjourned today until Monday to grant the trial judge time to determine whether she would be permitted to testify.

Her attorneys sought to secure admission of her oral testimony, describing her purported love affair with Warren G. Harding but Judge John M. Kilits ordered a recess. He will rule upon the admissibility of the testimony when court reconvenes Monday, he indicated.

Anticipating her oral recital will be barred, Nan's attorneys prepared to resume reading extracts from her book "The President's Daughter," before an adult audience.

TROOPS ARE PREPARING FOR MARCH

Movement from Manchuria to Russian Territory Impending, Reports Claim TO ENFORCE WARNING

White Russians Withdrawing from War Zone, According to Late Advices

TOKIO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—A movement of Japanese troops northward from Manchuria into Russian territory is impending, according to a Nippon Dempo News Agency dispatch received here today from Mukden.

The report of the concerted advance followed an exchange of notes between Tokio and Moscow in which the soviet government claimed it was "strictly neutral" in the Manchurian controversy between Japan and China.

The dispatch reported three soviet officials had departed for Moscow from Harbin, a Russian center in Manchuria, on receiving word of the impending Japanese troop movement.

White Russians in Manchuria and other points in Manchuria are withdrawing to Arbin, the dispatch said.

While Japan apparently was preparing to enforce its "friendly warning" to Russia, it was understood that Chinese military commanders in Heilungkiang province were strengthening their forces with evident intentions of defending their strongholds.

Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, chairman of the Heilungkiang government, released 15 guerrilla, or bandit, leaders from prison with instructions to raise two brigades of infantry. Defenses also were added at St.

SCATTERED RAINS IN SOUTH BRING RELIEF

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 31.—(UP)—Scattered rains brought some hope of relief today from forest fires that for a week have been sweeping over thousands of acres of valuable timberlands in eastern North Carolina.

Rain last night brought relief to Brunswick county where two major conflagrations were extinguished. Fires still burned today in Onslow, Jones, Carteret, Craven and Lenoir counties in an area extending approximately 150 miles from Sampson county to the sea coast.

A new fire broke out today in Duplin county. Thousands of men continued an ineffectual fight against the fires, hoping to hold them in check until rains extinguish them.

Liggett Letter To Mateer Announces Merchandise Event

E. T. Mateer of Mateer's Drug store, the local Rexall druggist has just received a personal letter from Louis K. Liggett, leading figure in the drug world, old friend of former President Coolidge and a keen student of modern business. The message sent from Boston headquarters of this outstanding packager in successful merchandising is full of good news and throws some interesting sidelights on current business affairs.

"I think the biggest merchandising idea that has ever been promulgated in America is the fall one-cent sale," said Mr. Liggett, and he gives this bit of history: "I brought this sale to you in the fall of 1914, after war had been declared between the European countries. Everything was at a standstill. Stock markets were closed. The one-cent sale put your business over then and it will do the same thing this fall."

The one-cent sale is merchandising from factory to consumer with the lowest possible intermediate profit. You will give employment in your stores by reason of what your consumers buy. And after all, that is what is going to tide us over!"

This Rexall one-cent sale will be run the first week in November and the people of this community will share in this festival of buying opportunity, Mateer said.

CROWD ENJOYS PRESENTATION FAMILY COMEDY

Marion Helm Williams, director of "Broken Dishes," the comedy given again last evening by the Santa Ana Community Players at the Ebell club, received the congratulations of a large audience last evening, when the Players appeared for the second time in the rollicking comedy of family life.

Mrs. Williams is instructor in drama in the Garden Grove schools, and persons who have seen the productions say the Players should be congratulated upon the able assistance she has been enabled to give them in putting over another Community play in a most professional manner.

"Broken Dishes" is a play covering three hours on a bitter cold winter's evening in the lives of a family of five persons in a small mid-western community, and it ever a moral rose out of the lives of five ordinary people it does in this mirth-provoking comedy.

The play is not without a bit of pathos, the kind that is threaded through the lives of almost every man and woman and the whole provides a most entertaining evening.

"Broken Dishes" will be given for the last time tonight.

Lillian Newman School of Dancing Will Open Here

The Lillian Newman School of Dancing, one of the pioneer dancing institutions in the Los Angeles harbor district, announces the opening of its Santa Ana branch as a permanent institution to meet the many requests which have been made for the establishment of a school here. It will be located in the Knights of Pythias building.

The school specializes in both adult and junior classes, but it is particularly with children that the Lillian Newman school has achieved unusual results.

As an introduction to Santa Ana, the Lillian Newman "Junior Polkas" will stage an afternoon and evening performance today at the Fox West Coast theater inaugurating the Halloween festivities.

SIMPLE RITES MARK TRIBUTE TO PIONEER

Simple funeral services were held at the Smith and Tutill Funeral chapel yesterday afternoon for Horace Fine, veteran newspaper worker and county pioneer who passed away at his home on North Broadway Wednesday morning.

The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke on the life and work of the deceased, saying that Horace Fine was loved by everyone and had never made an enemy.

The minister said that Horace Fine was kind, trustworthy, honorable, hard working and a friend of man, bringing out the thought that he had always thought of others instead of himself and had strived to make himself a useful citizen of the community.

Vocal numbers were presented by Maurice Phillips, The Santa Ana lodge of Elks had charge of the brief services at Fairhaven cemetery.

The entire front of the chapel was covered with beautiful and elaborate floral pieces sent by Orange county friends and organizations. The Register staff sent a floral replica of a front page of a newspaper, with the numerals, "30," in red on a white background. The chapel was crowded with friends of Fine, who had been a newspaper worker in Orange county for the past 42 years, starting his career back in 1889 on the old Santa Ana Tribune.

Pallbearers were T. E. Stephenson, J. O. Gilbank, Gilbert Campbell, Frank Purinton, W. A. West and Neil Stanley.

RELIEF PLANS OUTLINED FOR WELFARE BOARD

ORANGE, Oct. 31.—Plans for the relief of unemployed formed the principal topic for discussion at the meeting of the Orange Community Welfare board yesterday. Thirty-four members of the board and guests were present.

A concise report of the situation which must be met in this city this winter was presented by the Rev. Franklin Minck, who headed a committee recently appointed to make a survey of unemployed persons and their needs. The committee included V. D. Johnson and O. E. Rodelick.

The report revealed that 108 families had been registered as needing aid and work and of this number, nine were Mexican families. The families, it was said, had been divided into three groups and five had been found after a careful investigation to be in no great need at present. Families headed by 29 men and two headed by women were found to be in need but not actually starving and it was thought they could finance themselves for a time.

Three women and 55 men head families who are at present in great need, it was reported, and immediate steps must be taken to relieve them in order that they may keep body and soul together. The Rev. Mr. Minck said. The pastor said that a central source in which to give aid must be maintained and he suggested the employment of another welfare worker. A committee including George Sherwood, Clyde Watson and W. W. Perry, president of the Welfare board, appointed to consider the matter of an additional worker. The Rev. Mr. Minck said that the members of his committee had visited other cities and found what was being done in other communities.

Among other methods for placing the unemployed in touch with possible employers, pledges are to be printed which those who may be able to provide work of various sorts are to sign and workers are to be sent to them.

It was at first suggested that the rate of labor be set at 30 cents an hour. Dr. Robert Burns McAnley called attention to the fact that if this rate was set it might seem as if the board was lowering the wage scale.

Following a resolution offered by the Rev. L. V. Lucas of the First Methodist church, it was decided to print the pledges without specifying the rate. W. W. Perry said that both employers and employees were sharing in the plan as in many instances the employers were making a sacrifice in hiring extra labor. All unemployed are to register with the committee.

Capt. Una of the Salvation Army of Santa Ana declared the willingness of his organization to co-operate with Orange in aiding those in need and offered to take over the care of several families or to establish a shelter for men here. He said that men could be sent to the Santa Ana shelter at 818 East Third street.

O. E. Rodelick stated that a number of men had been given employment recently through the board.

6 Pints Of Booze Land Man In Jail

Following the asserted finding of six pints and a half gallon of liquor in the home of A. Camacho, 35, Flora street, Santa Ana, members of the Santa Ana police department last night arrested Camacho and lodged him in the county jail on a charge of possession of liquor.

The officers who made the arrest were members of the shotgun squad, Officers McWilliams and Murrillo.

CONDEMNS USE INSTITUTIONS BY GOVERNOR

A resolution passed at the last meeting of the Psychopathic association of Los Angeles and made public today condemns the use of state institutions as the spoils of political office and declares that men from the southern part of the state are being discharged from state institution posts and being placed by men sent by Governor Rolph's office from San Francisco and Sacramento.

"Out of 40 men given jobs at an insane hospital in the south 32 were from the north, replacing men from the south," it was declared at the meeting.

Dr. J. M. Toner, director of institutions is no longer passing out the jobs and all appointments are coming from the governor's office, according to information from the association.

Four Los Angeles men recently discharged from the Whittier Boys' school were named as Goddard, Cochran, Clippard and Clark. They were replaced by men whose names were given as Crowley, Smith, Hughes and Hytower, all from San Francisco.

The resolution said, "We suggest that the committee present the facts to Governor Rolph and demand an immediate cessation of the political wrecking."

Sneak Thief Gets Fortune In Bonds, Stock Certificates

A thief who late yesterday took a satchel from an automobile in Oceanside must have been given a real surprise when he opened the bag, for it contained thousands of dollars worth of negotiable bonds and stock certificates, according to a report filed with the Santa Ana police from Oceanside.

In the satchel were two gold bonds worth $5000 each; 30 stock certificates for 5100 shares at $10 per share; a mortgage for $500 and certificates for $25,000 on the California Building and Loan association.

Aside from the valuable papers, a pistol, about $100 worth of clothing and other smaller articles were contained in the satchel.

The name of the owner of the bag was not reported here.

Young Singer On Hillbilly Program

Santa Ana received some favorable publicity this morning over radio station KMTR in Hollywood, with the appearance of four-year-old Betty Blossom Goble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Goble, before the microphone at that station. She sang in connection with the Hollywood Hillbillys breakfast program.

"Three Cheers for S. A." local high school football song which she sang at the recent Santa Ana-San Diego game on Poly field, was one of her numbers. She was accompanied at the piano by her sister Galene Goble.

Restaurant Man In Court Monday

William Harris, 29, restaurant man, of 1016 West Washington avenue, was arrested last night by police officers on a charge of violation of the state wage law. He was released later to appear Monday in the city police court.

The charge against Harris concerns a $5 account alleged due to a former employee.

Court Notes

Two appeals from convictions in the city court of John Mitchell here were denied yesterday by Superior Judge G. K. Seovel. Maria Am-paria, who had appealed from a conviction on a possession charge, and W. C. Rowell, who had appealed from a conviction on a charge of disturbing the peace, failed to win their points and the judgments of the lower court were affirmed.

The probation hearing of James Rice, known in prize fighting circles as Jimmy Rivers, was continued one week when the case was called yesterday in Superior Judge H. G. Ames' court. Rivers has been convicted on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Mattilda Morales, 17, at Atwood.

The probation order for M. L. McManus, convicted in superior court on a drunk driving charge, was modified yesterday to allow his release from the county jail pending good behavior. McManus had pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to one year in the county jail when he was given probation. He had been in jail since February 27.

LECTURER SAYS WAY TO HEALTH LIES IN BIBLE

"God wants Christian people to be outstanding examples of health and healthful living," declared Evangelist John E. Ford Thursday night at the North Main street tabernacle. "He made man perfect in the beginning, placed him in a perfect world, and gave him a perfect food—grains, fruits, nuts. He who made the human body in the beginning knows what is best for its upkeep. If we follow His advice we need not be ill by pink pills or any other remedies and cure-alls."

"Before the flood while the vegetarian diet was the rule, the average length of life was over 900 years. After the flood when flesh food was permitted because all vegetation had been destroyed, the average length of life had decreased to less than 200 years within 10 generations. Well known physicians state that cancer has increased in the United States in proportion to the consumption of meat, tea, coffee, and alcohol. If we wish to be in health we must leave out the things which clog, poison and wear out the system. Last night Mr. Ford spoke on 'The last prophetic date in history.'"

It's great to realize that we have one half of the world's gold supply in this country, isn't it?

Of course, I don't know where it is—except what Doc Howe put in my back teeth—but it's not necessary for you and me and the other income tax dodgers to know much about World economics, anyway.

All we need to remember is one point about Orange County economics:—

Your dollar today will buy about $2 worth—if you spend it today. If you save it and wait for "good times" to get back into full swing, it will then buy only $1 worth.

Where's the percentage in saving it?

I don't know where you can spend today's dollar and get greater value in freedom from labor and responsibility than when you spend it for Sanitary Laundry Service.

Soft water — Ivory Soap — plenty of both — a real sense of responsibility — a determination to please — and a scale of prices much lower than you expect.

INDIANS ASK INVESTIGATION OF CONDITIONS

On motion of Past State Senator Samuel Cary Evans, the Mission Indian Federation, in open session with their "White Friends" Thursday at the council camp ground on the Jonathan Tibbets property at Riverside, passed a resolution asking that the supervisors of Riverside, San Diego, San Bernardino and Imperial counties organize a joint committee to take in charge the investigation of conditions on the reservations of Southern California Indians, and report conditions as they are found to authorities who have power to act.

The federation, which meets twice a year at the council grounds, devotes one day each week to a conference with the friends who are interested in their welfare. Mrs. Florence Summers, Newport Beach, presided at the meeting yesterday, and others from Orange county who appeared on the program were her son, Frank, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Seamans of Yorba Linda, Dr. Graham C. Hunter of Fullerton, and Vladimir Lenski of Costa Mesa.

The chief complaint registered by the Indians is the impersonal way in which their affairs are handled. Their talks, made by chiefs of several tribes, were borne out by talks by Dr. James Bat-ton and Dr. Brink of Pomona college, and by Senator Evans, who declared the Indian affairs are administered without knowledge of conditions.

Marcus H. Forster, San Juan Capistrano, is secretary and treasurer of the federation.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

One does not need to search far in the Pauline epistles for appropriate lessons dealing with the great matter of temperance. Almost inevitably the problems of temperance, especially in relation to intoxicating liquors, are discussed in the realm of social and legal effort to deal with the causes of temperance and to remove these causes. An erroneous impression prevails in certain quarters that law against something that is harmful rules out voluntary action. Paul lays great stress on the fact that law is made for the lawless, and that the man of true insight and character lives above the law. That is, he does not want to do the things that it is necessary to have laws to prohibit. The essential virtues and fruits of the spirit—love, joy, peace, patience, meekness, temperance—all are things against which there is no law.

The notion that some people have today that law creates evil and that law incites men and women to disobedience to law is little justified. The fact that there is a law against murder does not impel any right-minded man to want to commit murder.

If there is an impulse today to break law, we must attribute it to some other cause rather than to the effect of the law itself. If laws curb essential liberties, if they destroy the freedom of the individual without achieving any good, there may be warrant for opposing such laws as wrong. But to take the attitude that many are taking today that law, as law, is itself of anti-social effect is a serious thing.

Paul is right in saying that you can have only the right spirit and only a true society when men are concerned more about provoking one another to love and good works than about displaying their liberty in doubtful, anti-social practices. Manifestly, one of the troubles in life is that masses of men and women have never learned either to rule their own spirits or to bring their lives under the subjection of any principle of consideration for others or of rightness and soundness of living in a social group.

What should be the attitude of the Christian toward society? He knows that deeper than all law is the rule of the spirit of God. What he is concerned about more than anything else is to know what he ought to do and then do it.

It is true that there have been times in human society when the state has passed laws that the Christian could not conscientiously obey. There have been times when the state has curbed his freedom of worship and his rights of moral action. There are those who foolishly see in the Christian's opposition to such laws and refusal to obey such laws, something that is akin to the spirit and activity of the criminal. Such a notion is entirely wrong. Conscientious conviction underlies all noble living.

There is profound danger when men ignore laws because of their own gain or their own pleasure. But when a man disobeys a law for conscientious reasons and because of high scruples that mark the unselfish and noble quality of his life, there can be little danger to the state. Only laws that are inherently questionable will ever be opposed on such high ground. The great danger to a state is not that men should be too conscientious in their attitude toward law, but that men should not be conscientious enough.

Contradictory as are the many reports about Russia, they all center around and magnify one personality. To live in Russia today is to live in the shadow of one dominate figure, a figure awesome and mysterious not only to the outside world but to the Russians themselves. That figure is Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party. Isaac Don Levine tells of this man in his new book "Stalin."

Here is the story told for the first time, of the rise of a dictatorship, the like of which has never before been known. It must be remembered that not by virtue of his office does Stalin dominate Russia. There is nothing in the constitution of party or country that confers such power upon the secretary-general. Stalin rules by virtue of his own personality, his iron will power, his single minded fanatical devotion to a cause.

This man's every word has the force of law for 160,000,000 people. His speeches, articles, and expressions of opinion are studied more carefully and obeyed with more alacrity than any official edict. He speaks in the name of the former underdogs, the masses who threw off the yoke of tsarist autocracy, yet he exercises a control as far-reaching as that of Peter the Great or Ivan the Terrible. He appears in public only rarely; rare too and brief are his public pronouncements. No wonder his countrymen like the world outside have built up a legendary figure who they think is Stalin. From his acts, his words, his refusal to talk to the press, and his inaccessibility generally they have constructed their "Man of Steel"—stern, strong, merciless, almost frightening.

This Stalin is not like the familiar idea of a dictator. About him there is nothing of the theatrical Mussolini, the spectacular Napoleon. You will find yourself face to face with a man who is big, stolid, immovable—strong as nature itself—a man who in his dominant characteristics of idealism plus ruthlessness seems to sum up the whole Revolution. Whatever your present opinion, you will want to know the world-shaking dictator about whom you have heard so much.

There have been many viewpoints in presenting American history. In "The Epic of America," James Truslow Adams gives a picture showing greater perspective than we find in many such books.

Here is the story of the American people. It is told as a graphic but comprehensive narrative interpreting the people themselves. We see the influences that shaped their character, the contaminations to which they were exposed, and the spirit which has brought them through crises in the past and which must be trusted to preserve them in the troubled future. Here is no tangled chronicle of dates, campaigns, and battles; instead by selecting the momentous episodes in our growth, by giving us brief but brilliant biographical snapshots of our leaders, and by consistently showing up what life held for the American man of city, town, and frontier, Mr. Adams has presented a panorama of American life from Columbus to Hoover. James Truslow Adams is among the most distinguished American historians of today. His first rose to eminence with his three-volume "History of New England," his "The Adams Family" was one of the outstanding books of 1920. In his new book he maintains the same excellence of portrayal.

Carleton Beals is one of the few living American writers who feel the spirit of Latin-American life and who thoroughly appreciate its savor and substance. His allegiance is to the United States, but his sympathies and affinities are rooted in Latin-American folkways, their violence, their squander, their valor and their color. His "Mexican Maze" is leaves from a notebook of fifteen years of war and revolution in Mexico.

Miracles pagan and Christian, traveler's tales of inns, fiestas, and intimate views of Mexican households, legends and stories of Indians, revolutionary generals and mestizo muleteers crowd these stirring pages. The peculiar and tragic history of Mexico is discussed—the waves of imperialism, revolution and militarism that have swept over the country; the tangled religion of the Indians—Catholic churches built on top of ancient temples, old gods worshipped under Christian names. Layer upon layer of centuries of culture are unwrapped: Aztec priests sacrificing human victims; Spanish conquistadores torturing Indian kings for their gold; American engineers cheating the peasants out of their oil rights. It is a travel book into time as well as through strange valleys and along tropical coasts.

From the vignette of the "moon-drenched figures, figures in snowy garb who walk the white, white road to Totuta" on the first page, to the report on the Mexican oil industry toward the end of the book, there is a constant flow of interesting material about Mexico. It is a book you should look at as well as read. The author has collected scores of the crisp and charming pen and ink sketches of Diego Rivera to illustrate its pages.

Text:

"And a Little Child Shall Lead Them" Isaiah 11:6

The above quotation is taken from a passage in Isaiah, which is believed to be a description of what some call the millenium. We are not yet in the millenium and it may be a long ways off, but we are being led by our children. Our boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. If the nation is to be led on to heights of great achievement, it will be because of our children. If our nation disintegrates and falls, as many powerful nations have done before, it will be because of the weakened moral fiber of our future leaders.

Truly, our children are leading us. One thing that makes thoughtful observers wonder about our national destiny is the alarming increase in juvenile crime and delinquency. Our preachers preach, our educators lecture, and our politicians rant, apparently in vain. The situation is "condemned," "regretted" and "deplored," but these conditions still persist unchecked. And, of course, the liquor element tries to lay it all on prohibition. But thoughtful observers see in this so-called "revolt of youth" something deeper and more fundamental than any condition that could be brought about by statutory laws.

Christianity has been the underlying root of the morality of our nation. It has been the rugged anchor to which our people have tied for moral strength and guidance. The Bible has for centuries been accepted as the rule and guide of our faith. If you will look closely into the teachings of our schools, I believe you will find the cause of our present problem.

In many of our schools teaching is given which strikes right at the heart of a child's faith in God and in the Bible. I particularly refer to the theory of "evolution," as it is commonly called. However, I refer to it as the transmutation of species. For evolution within a known species is a proved and demonstrable fact of science. Rose culture, animal husbandry and similar sciences are all based upon the knowledge that a species may be developed from something poor and scrawny to something fine and beautiful. This is true evolution.

The theory of so-called "evolution," as taught in our schools as an explanation of the existence of man, is vitally different from this. It attempts to show that species have changed from one to another, for which theory there is not one iota of proof to be found anywhere on the earth. For example, such not as the following: In "Home Geography," by H. P. Fairbanks, Ph. D., page 142: "If birds could talk, what stories we might hear. We might learn of a time, ever so long ago, when their grandfathers were not birds at all. Then they could not fly, for their had neither wings nor feathers. These grandfathers of our birds had four legs, a long tail and jaws with teeth. After a time feathers grew upon their bodies and their front legs became changed for flying. These were strange-looking creatures. There are none living like them now." Just imagine!

Evolutionists have become quite radical in their claims of the proof of the theory. Let us take the case of the Neanderthal Man, an intermediate between man and ape. In the American Museum of Natural History in New York there are five glass cases in which are kept the "reconstructed" forms of the so-called intermediate animal-ape man. Skeletons of these ape men have NOT been found. Their figures are imaginary. In fact, they are only "an artist's conception" of what evolutionists tell us used to be. Of the existence of such creatures they have not one shred of proof.

Let us examine this Neanderthal Man. In August, 1856, some laborers digging in a small cave at the entrance of the Neanderthal gorge, Westphalia, Germany, threw out some pieces of a skull bone. The scientists learned about these bones and became interested in finding out to what race of men or what apes or ape-men these bones belonged. Further search was made in that cave and other bones—human bones—were found. A controversy arose immediately among the scientists about this skull. They used the lines of the fragments found to form or reconstruct the complete skull and then measured its internal capacity. Now the capacity of the human skull is between 1400 and 1500 cubic centimeters, while the ape's skull capacity stops at 600 c. c. Of course the "scientists" wanted to make this Neanderthal skull capacity as low as they could in order to tell the world they had found the "missing link." So the first measurement told them that the capacity was 1033 c. c. But even Professor Huxley had to correct that, and he estimated the capacity at 1220 c. c. Others estimated it at a higher figure than that. There was never any agreement among scientists as to the proper place to assign these skull fragments. On the contrary, 12 distinct and different opinions among the most eminent scientists have been held in reference to this skull. Yet we have the "reconstructed" form of the man in our great museum and full-page pictures of the complete form of this imaginary man in our textbooks for our children to look at as they read the history of the "Neanderthal race"—a race that never existed! A race named for a valley in Germany where some bone fragments were found!

The history of another one of these "ape men" is even more disgraceful than that of Mr. Neanderthal. Let us take the Pittdown or the Dawn Man, as he is sometimes called. In 1909 Mr. Charles Dawson discovered a few bone fragments in a sandpit near Pittdown Common, Sussex, England. The fragments were two small pieces of human skull, a part of a jawbone and a canine tooth. Mr. Dawson and other scientists immediately constructed "a new species" and called him Eoanthropus Dawsoni, eo meaning dawn, anthropus man and Dawsoni in honor of Mr. Dawson. In other words, Mr. Dawson's Dawn Man. However, in 1913, Sir Arthur Keith demonstrated before the British association for the Advancement of Science that the Pittdown skull had a brain capacity of 1500 c. c. instead of 1070 c. c., which Mr. Dawson first claimed. This proved that the skull was a fully developed human skull and not an "ape man's" skull, as the discoverers of Mr. Pittdown had declared. On further examination it was shown that the canine tooth had by the "recon-structors" been put on the right side of the lower jaw whereas it belonged on the left side of the upper jaw! This further reduced the ape-like appearance of Mr. Pittdown. But the finishing blow was delivered by Dr. George Grant MacCurdy, head of the archaeological department of Yale university, who said: "Regarding the Pittdown specimens, we have at last reached a position that is tenable. The cranium is human, as was recognized by all in the beginning. On the other hand, the mandible and the canine tooth are those of a fossil chimpanzee. This means that in place of Eoanthropus Dawsoni (the Pittdown missing link) we have two individuals belonging to different genera." And yet such things are still being taught our children in the name of science.

One of the most pitiful things is that so many of our teachers and preachers of the present day talk about the "fact of evolution." This is humbuggery in the name of science, for many of our greatest scientists admit frankly that evolution can never be proved.

Lord Kelvin said: "I marvel at the undue haste with which teachers in our universities and preachers in our pulpits are restating truth in the terms of evolution while evolution itself remains an unproved hypothesis in the laboratories of science."

Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan of Columbia university says: "Within the period of human history we do not know of a single instance of the transformation of one species into another one. . . . It may be claimed that the theory of descent is lacking; therefore, in the most essential feature that it needs to place the theory on a scientific basis. This must be admitted."—Evolution and Adaptation, page 43.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, in a speech delivered in August, 1925, in Los Angeles, said: "The pathetic thing is that we have scientists who are trying to prove evolution, which no scientist can ever prove. Now, I don't want you to think that I am on the other side, I am not. I am only asking for more caution. We must not bite off more than we can chew. We must not take a few facts and then draw conclusions. This applies both to the theologian and the scientist. Both should learn the lesson of modesty."

Despite its slim scientific foundation, these evolutionistic theories are being taught to our children as proved facts every day. Their faith in the Bible is being shaken, their hold on Christ and Christianity is being weakened, and the moral forces of their characters are thus hindered of full development. The effect of the Darwinian theory on morals is definitely admitted by educators. Professor Henry Osborn, in his Impressions of Great Naturalists, says: "I do not see that Darwin's supreme service to his fellow-men was his demonstration of evolution. Man could have lived on quite happily, and perhaps more morally, under the old notion that he was specially made in the image of his Maker."

I insist that if I cannot teach my religion in the schools of this state, the atheist should not be allowed to teach his. The state has no moral right to educate my children so they will scoff at my faith, laugh at the Bible and repudiate the church.

"A little child shall lead them." If we are going to build instead of destroy the future of our country, we must build instead of destroy the faith of our young in their Creator, His Word and His Church.

Late News From Orange And Nearby Towns

SETH PERKINS HOME SCENE OF BRIDGE PARTY

ORANGE, Oct. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Seth Perkins, North Olive street, were dinner hosts to the members of their bridge club Thursday night when they entertained with a "hard times" party.

When guests reached the front door they found by the dim light of an old lantern, directions to go to the side door of the home, and when they reached the side door they were confronted with a large sign, "Wet Paint," and from this entry they were directed to the back door. Here they found the quarantine sign for smallpox and were told to enter the home by means of a ladder placed at the bedroom window.

After guests had gained this difficult entrance they found the rooms faintly lighted with candles, kerosene lights and jack o'lanterns. Each guest was presented with a small red capsule which gave directions for stunts which were an amusing prelude to the evening of bridge. High score was made by Seth Perkins and second high score by Mrs. J. B. Cook.

Holder of high score was entitled to make first choice from a heap of "dime" packages brought by each person present and which were chosen while wrapped in a way to disguise the contents. Choices of packages were based on the scores. Dinner was served at one long table and three smaller ones. Centerpieces were flowers fashioned from vegetables and candles were placed in the center of the bowls which held them. Handless cups and old silver were a part of the table service.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake, Mrs. Lillian Blahop, Roy Campbell and Miss Estella Campbell, of Pomona; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cook, Mrs. Winnie Johnson, Mrs. Faye Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Neuenchwander, Mr. and Mrs. William Payne, Mr. and Mrs. N. U. Potter, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Pratt, Mrs. Madeline Stamps, Mrs. Hazel Summers and son, Charles Summers and Mrs. Anna Crawford.

Costumes were very amusing and one of the cleverest was that of William Payne, who came dressed as a Stoch lassie. Henry Neuenchwander was a tramp. Mrs. Summers was dressed as a duke and Mrs. Stamps and Mrs. Cook wore flapper costumes.

Ray Carter, of Bell, will speak at the evening service. Special music has been arranged for both services and the day will be a rally day for members of the congregation.

YOUNG PEOPLE AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

ORANGE, Oct. 31.—The young people's department of the Christian church gave a Halloween party last evening in the social hall under the leadership of their superintendent, Mrs. Leon Des Larzes. Decorations of corn stalks, pumpkins and Halloween colors were used. The special guests of the evening were the members of the high school department under the leadership of Mrs. David G. Wottlin.

Forty-five were in attendance. Tiny Do Verne Wolfe, daughter of Mrs. Neletta Wolfe, the pianist of the evening, entertained with acrobatic stunts. A grand march was played in which all the costumed attendants took part, with a first prize awarded Miss Leota Ingle, of a beautiful pink vase for the best Halloween attire. Clifford White, attired as a pirate, won first prize of the boys and Jimmie Swan, won in hobo attire the "booby" prize.

Miss Thelma Dugan was program chairman. Cullen Gray and Howard Davis chose slides in a contest of "Cats" and "Donkeys" in which the "Cats" won. Refreshments of apple cider, pumpkin pie and Halloween candies were served.

W. R. C. Members Hold Luncheon

ORANGE, Oct. 31.—A benefit luncheon for the work of the W. R. C. was given by Mrs. Gladys McDonald and Mrs. Rebecca Baier at the home of the former, 192 South Center street, this week.

Chrysanthemums were used to decorate the rooms while a bouquet of red roses was used as the centerpiece. After the luncheon, "500" was the diversion of the afternoon. Mrs. Edith Richardson received high score. Mrs. Will Barnes second score and Mrs. Lillian Weitenman was consoled.

Luncheon guests were Mesdames Estelle Gray and Mary Flashman, of Santa Ana; Bert Dock, Anna Slater, Will Barnes, Lillian Weitenman, Margaret Faber, Lucy Richardson, Mable Lee, Sadie Hanger, Mabelle Elliott, Edith Richardson, Florence Merriman, Pearl Higgins and the two hostesses.

SANTA ANA ENTERS SUNDAY BALL CIRCUIT

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
With his neck in a brace following an injury during scrimmage, Lou Little found it difficult to turn on the bench and watch his men when the play was at either end of the gridiron. . . so he swiped a professor's swivel chair. . . Five of the Columbia players are from Lawrence, Mass. . . they are Hewitt, Grenda, Matal, Linehan and Cadogan. . . Matal and Linehan were classmates at Roxbury school. . . Albie Booth caught cold recently. . . he said it was caused by a draft that came through the Yale line in the Georgia game. . . the old kiddy. . . The Giants will use Wrigley field, Los Angeles, as their 1932 training base.

OPTIMISM?
Evidently Madison Square Garden is of the opinion that boxing and other public hall business will earn at least $45,000 profit during the next three years. That sum, at the rate of $15,000 a year, is what the Garden is paying James J. Johnston, former boy bandit of Broadway, to conduct its athletic affairs.

SCHOLARLY PERILS
Dr. H. Marx White, professor of medicine at the University of Minnesota, the other day remarked that college youths, recklessly asserting themselves in competitive sports for the glory of dear old Woola, may cause themselves bodily harm. But then, doctor, a person could fall out of a window in the library, too, you know.

PROSPERITY
It was estimated that all the way from 500 to 2000 Texans good and true made the long trip from Texas to see their football team play in Harvard stadium. You might say that was a benefit game for the railroads.

DALLAS TO ANNAPOLIS
Southern Methodist University players get around over the country a bit too. They play the Navy at Annapolis and go to the other coast in December to meet St. Mary's.

YANKS BUILDING
With the arrival of Frank Crosetti, the sensational Pacific Coast league shortstop, and Eddie Farrell, former Giant, the Yankees expect to plug infield gaps that were costly during the 1931 season. Jimmy Reese, who came to New York in the $100,000 deal along with Lyn Lary, is slated to go. Cy Perkins, the catcher, also is about to be separated from the pay roll. And Joe Sewell won't be there in 1932. Waiters were asked three times on Sewell during the last season, and each time the Boston Braves refused to waive.

DER MAXIE COMING
Herr Schmeling's eye trouble has been cured and he will be back in this country to start an exhibition tour Dec. 15. It was this writer's opinion all along that the eye would get better. And it will be better than that when "der shompen" looks over the box office reports on his tour.

THIS BALL AND THAT
The American league may adopt for next year the ball with a heavier cover used in the National league last season. President Barnard probably will recommend to the magnates meeting in December that the National league ball makes for a more spectacular brand of baseball. But-Burleigh Grimes pitched a near no-hit game with the American League ball in Philadelphia. And Pepper Martin did a few tricks that were fairly spectacular while the American league ball was being used in Philadelphia, including a home run.

SEACORD TAKES PASS TO WHIP LOYOLA FROSH

BY GRIDDER
The eyes—not the eyes, Mr. Linotype—had it at Poly field yesterday.

Santa Ana eyes, keener than Loyola optics, won by an eyelash, 13 to 7.

Far, far into the night, until both sides seemed remotely associated with some mystery play on a dimly lighted stage, Don and Frosh footballers struggled in a non-conformist guessing contest.

It was totally dark when the catch-as-catch-can came to a rather ridiculous conclusion, but during the period when people could see there was churned just enough mixture of good, bad and indifferent football to make it worthy entertainment.

As a matter of fact, it was one of the best sellers of the season; even if it was so bad that officials trudged off an even 150 yards in penalties during the first half alone, and added nearly a hundred more in the second half.

Pass Wins For Dons
A forward pass, thrown off a single reverse play, won the old ball game for "Barnacle Bill" Cook's men in the third quarter.

Both schools scored in the second period—Loyola first, then Santa Ana. Neither touchdown was converted, so the clubs came back from their intermission 6 and 6.

The Dons received the second half kickoff on their 15-yard line and lunged it down the road to a touchdown. Momentarily deterred by a 15-yard penalty that set them back from Loyola's 11-yard line to its 26, little Jimmie Hall faked a reverse, sidled a few steps, then hurried a forward pass along the sidelines to Emmett Seacord, who shook off an eager tackler at his side and centered 15 remaining yards to the Catholics' goal.

Seacord's kick for the extra point was wide, but Loyola was offside and the Dons got another chance which Hall made good with a line plunge through left guard. Nobody seemed to know it though, even the scoreboard carrying the deception to the bitter end. But the score was 13-6, not 12-6.

Penalties Save Lead
Two 15-yard penalties, one on top of the other, saved Santa Ana embarrassment before the third quarter was completed. The Frosh intercepted a pass and run it back to midfield, from where they plunged and passed to the Dons' two-yard line. Then they carried it across but a penalty for holding and another for protesting it too ardently terminated their drive and killed their spirit.

It looked even worse for Anaheim than a tie score when the fourth quarter opened.

Brea had a six-point lead acquired in the opening quarter when Stives, quarterback, pounded across from the three-yard line after a pass from Stives to Captain Pfeiffer, end, placed the ball on the Anaheim 20-yard stripe. By line bucks and off-tackle plays, Coach "Shorty" Smith's Brea troupe forced its way to the goal. Stives' attempt to convert failed.

Anaheim continued to outplay the Wildcats but it wasn't until the beginning of the fourth quarter that their attack was effective. A pass from Bouldin, fullback, to Davis, halfback, was good for 20 yards and put the ball on the 10-yard line. After a couple of line bucks, Bouldin plunged across. The chance to convert and win the game was missed when Bouldin's place kick was wide.

In the last few minutes, Brea-Olinda had a chance to win the game when Bouldin touch the ball on the six-yard line after a punt and Captain Pfeiffer recovered. Its opportunity faded when officials imposed a 25-yard penalty.

Although Anaheim made 11 first downs to 3 for Brea-Olinda in the feature football game played in the Orange County league yesterday, the Colonists were able to eke out only a 6 to 6 tie. Now Dick Glover's Anaheim eleven can claim the distinction of being the most tied team in the county, having held Orange to a scoreless tie two weeks ago.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—When the Shaver-Pinckert-Mallory-Musick backfield combination takes the field against Stanford University here November 7, it will mark the last opportunity these boys will have to play against their leading Pacific coast rivals. All four members of the Trojan starting backfield are seniors, two of them, Pinckert and Musick, have been regulars for three seasons.

Of the quartet, Pinckert has had the most notable athletic career at S. C. In his high school days at San Bernardino, Erny excelled as a ball carrying quarterback and he continued in this line as a Trojan freshman.

Coach Howard Jones needed a good blocker to replace Lloyd Thomas in 1929 and Sophomore Pinckert was given a tryout for the job. He was an immediate sensation at the blocking half-back position, playing one of the greatest games ever seen against Stanford when he aided a Trojan 7 to 0 victory by hitting so hard that he pounded his shoulder pads to a pulp, and bits of grass and padding had to be taken out of his shoulders with tweezers after the game.

Last year Pinckert continued his great playing and was on every All-American team of prominence at the end of the season, being the first blocking halfback ever to win a place on the mythical squad.

This year his great all-around work again has him in line for the All-American team.

Musick, a Santa Ana, made the first eleven at fullback as a sophomore through his terrific hitting on offense. He was a good blocker and steady on defense and never has received the credit he justly deserves. In the Berkeley mud recently he was the mainstay of the Trojan defense as the lighter ball carriers were unable to get any footing on the slippery field.

Gus Shaver, starting quarterback, played quarterback at Covina high school but a good fullback reserve was needed on the 1929 and '30 Trojan varsities and Gus was kept at this position. Upon being shifted to quarterback this season, he has had his first real chance to star and his playing has stood out in every game to date.

Tom Mallory, left half, is the rightmost member of the backfield and has won a regular position through hard, conscientious work after playing in a reserve job for two years.

After graduation, Pinckert, who has already quite a reputation as an artist, will go into cartooning and commercial art. Shaver will go into physical education and coaching. Mallory will enter civil engineering and Musick will go into business.

SHARKEY DEMANDS DEMPSEY, 'MOXIE'

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Leave it to Jack Sharkey to do the unexpected.

With promoters virtually falling over themselves to secure his services and with at least half a dozen profitable bouts in eight, the Boston sailor again has turned prima-donna and announced that he will not fight anyone except Jack Dempsey or Champion Jack Schmelzing.

Sharkey's announcement, regarded by boxing followers as tantamount to a retirement from the ring, ended negotiations for a new York Christmas fund bout between Sharkey and Tommy Loughran. He previously had refused to fight Mickey Walker under the same auspices.

The Bostonian's manager professes confidence that Sharkey will be chosen for Dempsey's initial major opponent in the former champion's comeback campaign though Dempsey himself has indicated he is not interested in meeting Sharkey.

St. Mary's, Santa Clara Play Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—St. Mary's and Santa Clara were ready today for their annual gridiron classic, the meeting of the "little giants," in Kezar stadium here tomorrow.

Lifting themselves out of the "little giant" class, the Gaels are firmly established as the leading squad of the west and are two to one favorites to score still another victory over the Broncos. A victory would give "Slip" Madigan's men a record of 12 in a row.

The biggest football crowd in San Francisco this season was expected, since Santa Clara always has given the Gaels trouble and is in line this year for a possible upset. St. Mary's, according to prognosticators, must rely on superior reserve forces to defeat "Clippers" Smith's men.

St. Mary's famous aerial attack, held in reserve during recent games, will be unleashed against Santa Clara, Madigan said. The Broncos have the edge on punting and a heavier line as counter threats.

ORANGE BEATS TUSTIN, 13-0, LEADS LEAGUE

By JOE BARNETT

Coach Stewart White's Orange Panthers retained their 1931 title of "never-having-been-scored-upon" when they slipped over a 13-0 victory on the Tustin Tillers yesterday at Orange. Chief Panther Harold Welty scored both Orange touchdowns, one in the first and one in the final quarter.

The victory gave Orange a technical leadership of the Orange league. Anaheim and Brea-Olinda haven't suffered defeat either but the Panthers are mathematically ahead at this time.

Entering the game a heavy favorite, the Orangemen barely lived up to their odds, relying almost entirely on their offensive, led by quarterback Welty. In the first period, Tustin receiving, hit a stone wall and was forced to punt. Welty received the kick on his own 40-yard line and ran it clear to Tustin's 10-yard marker. On the next play he made it first down, and then followed this by diving over his own right tackle and cutting back to the left for a touchdown.

Again choosing to receive, Tustin began an offensive which ended on the Orange 10-yard line, losing the ball on passes. Sears, Benton and Lindsey for Tustin were the main ground-gainers during this drive, Sears packing the ball just outside the Panther ends, Benton driving over center and Lindsey being on the receiving end of two long passes which netted first downs.

The first half closed after some spectacular running behind good interference by Sears for the Coleman, and Welty for Orange. In the first two quarters of the game, the Tillers made six first downs to Orange's five, seemingly upsetting the dope which had predicted a walk-over for Orange.

From the third period on, Tustin's main offensive was well-placed passes to Lindsey and MacIntyre, with Sears at the hurling end. One exchange of kicks early in the third quarter, the Farmers made 13 yards, but rapidly lost it when Orange held them for downs and Welty got off a magnificent 55-yard punt from behind his own goal. Tustin began another aerial attack which ended when Welty picked a Farmer pass out of the air and raced 15 yards before a Tustin man stopped him. With Meyer, Orange's star blocker, out of the game, the Panther offensive looked ragged, but in the fourth frame, with the Orange right half on the job, Welty and Cerney alternated packing the ball job to make

EIGHT TEAMS BEGIN PENNANT DRIVE NOV. 8

Santa Ana today was assured baseball of a high order throughout the coming winter months.

Agreeing to all provisions, particularly those pertaining to travel, the Santa Ana Hancock Oil team entered the crack Southern California Winter league and will plunge into the thick of a pennant race November 8, according to Business Manager Carl Ruecker.

Other clubs in the circuit are Shell Oil of Long Beach, George Stovall's Houghton Park, Pasadena Merchants, Pasadena Sportsman, South Pasadena, Ventura and the Cannon Ball Express, the last named strictly a traveling team.

Santa Ana was offered a franchise a week ago, but at first spurned it because league officials refused to let the Oilers play all their games at their new South Main street diamond here. After deliberating several days the Santa Ana management decided to cast its lot with the Southern California circuit and form another club which will play at the home park when the Oilers are traveling. This will enable Ruecker and his associates to develop younger players.

The Southern California league will play a 14-game schedule, with a split season. The winner of the first half will take on the champion of the second round in a post-season series for a titular trophy. Santa Ana's first game November 8 will be a home contest with Houghton Park, handled by "Firebrand" George Stovall.

Tomorrow the Hancock Oilers play their third home game. The opposition will be the Valley Boulevard Merchants, instead of Cannonball Express, as originally announced. The latter team was unable to come here by reason of previous engagements.

Larry Hemus, former Fullerton jockey ace, has been assigned to pitch for the Santa Anans, with Bill Hersherberger catching. Either Arch Carpenter or Ray Scholder will handle first base, Darwin Scott second, "Chisel" Hatfield third and "Hry" Thery short. Randolph Bell, Orr Schuchardt and Joe Mene, three of the fastest flycatchers in bush baseball, will roam the pastures.

Hersherberger is leading the regulars with a batting average of .555. Hatfield and Mene have .509. Then come Stoner, .400; Schuchardt and Bell, .375; Scott, .300; Thery, .284; Hemus, .250.

HARBOR SCHOOL DISTRICT MEN IN GYM CLASS

The men's adult gymnasium class will reorganize at the Newport Harbor high school gym next Thursday night at 7:30. It will be held regularly thereafter Thursday evenings.

The class was a decided success last year, taking care of more than 60 members, most of whom were younger men so the class evolved itself into a basketball league.

Plans this winter call for a night class two times each week. On Thursdays, a regular gym class will be held, catering to older men with a program of exercises, group games, volleyball, etc., listed.

Monday evenings will be used entirely for basketball. In about two weeks, the second annual community basketball league will start, and an eight-team schedule of games will be played.

Teams entered to date are the Balboa Phelps Terkels, Rendezvous five, Costa Mesa Community church, Newport Methodists, Newport Pirates, and Service laundry.

The gym class and basketball league is held under direction of R. K. Reed, athletic coach at Harbor High school. Except for a small towel fee, the classes are free and should be taken advantage of by Harbor school district men.

Late News From Orange County Communities

REPORTS SHOW PROGRESS FOR HIGHWAY BODY

BREA, Oct. 31.—Seventy-five persons, representing the five southern counties interested in the progress of the Imperial highway, attended the dinner and business meeting of that organization held in the Masonic hall in Brea last night. The meeting marked the second anniversary of the association, the organization meeting having been held in Brea in October, 1929.

Walter Greening, Norwalk, opened the meeting, introducing Harlan LeGro, president of the Brea Chamber of Commerce, who in turn presented Mayor Ted Craig. Craig's welcoming talk was later responded to by E. H. Peterkin, member of the executive council of the highway association.

Representatives from various localities along the proposed route of Imperial highway reported on progress made in their sections, among these being Nat Neff, Orange county road superintendent; J. Stewart, of Riverside; R. Sutter, of Corona; Hayes, of El Centro. George Kellogg, secretary, read the minutes of the October, 1929 meeting and then with reports and lantern slides, made plain the progress that has been made within the past two years.

A resolution was adopted without dissent, calling upon the Rio Grande Oil company to make good to the association a promise made some time ago to grant certain rights-of-way within the county of Los Angeles.

W. D. Harris, pioneer of the state, related some interesting facts about the route which the Imperial highway will traverse, particularly from Orange county to Yuma. The route, Harris stated, lies on one of the greatest faults known in geological surveys, with Brea located about at its termination and its southern terminal being at some point in Mexico. From the diary of his mother, a member of the Jordan wagon trail, Harris quoted many interesting facts of the hardships encountered and of the courage displayed by these pioneers of California. He urged that the association have put into a booklet form all the early day data to be obtained about the route so that it may be accurately preserved as a historical background for the splendid cross-state highway which is to be established.

The 6:45 o'clock dinner was served by the ways and means committee of the Brea Chamber of Commerce, with Mrs. John Cox and Mrs. George C. Folkemer in charge. A short program was provided by the committee, the numbers including readings by Mrs. Cox and Charles Miller, piano-accompaniment selections by Bob Close, dancing numbers by the Daughters of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Jackson. Halloween motifs were used effectively in the decorations of the dining room and in the favors and napkins at the tables which were set in the form of the letter H, a significant tribute to the Highway association.

Several Brea people whose properties border on Imperial highway in this city were present and questions were asked and answered concerning costs of the proposed improvement involving that property.

The next meeting was announced to be held in El Centro November 28 and 29. Representatives from El Centro announced that special entertainment is being provided for November 29.

The Case of the Missing Sandals

By Nancy Barr Mavity

SYNOPSIS

Peter Piper, California newspaper reporter, is on the trail of the mysterious disappearance of Luna, a beautiful but dissolute and unscrupulous woman who has been head of a colony of mystics. Luna has been both stabbed and shot. On her breast is found a bundle of love letters from Earl Vincent, young radio operator who had become infatuated with her, though he had been engaged to Ruth Morgan. Luna's sandals are missing and are not to be found in the house. Vincent disappeared immediately after the murder. He was caught on a cruise ship, on which he had been radio operator, but escaped before the steamer landed. Peter sets out on the trail of the missing Luna.

He had no money, but was convinced of the young man's guilt despite the weight of circumstantial evidence. There are several others, who were concerned with Luna's affairs, and any one of them might have murdered the "mad" woman. He follows Ruth Morgan in his car. He has a talk with her after she has led him far into the country.

He says he is a writer, and sets out to take Peter to the suspect. Vincent is found in the influence was "Good news, I didn't admire her. I even had the crazy idea that I could save her, if she'd let me."

"I wasn't blind. I hadn't any illusions—except the one illusion that I—I, a perfectly ordinary kid—could influence a woman like Luna and make her over. I wasn't such a fool, either. I could see that the influence was 'Good news, I didn't admire her. I even had the crazy idea that I could save her, if she'd let me.'"

"I wasn't blind. I hadn't any illusions—except the one illusion that I—I, a perfectly ordinary kid—could influence a woman like Luna and make her over. I wasn't such a fool, either. I could see that the influence was 'Good news, I didn't admire her. I even had the crazy idea that I could save her, if she'd let me.'"

The pathetic simplicity of it brought a smile to Peter's lips. Vincent, caught by the undercurrents of that powerful personality, had been helpless as a kitten in a whirlpool. And he had imagined that the skiff, wrenched about by the force of those concentric circles, could transform the whirlpool into a straight and limpid stream.

"You wanted to persuade Luna to become the nice, ordinary wife of a nice, ordinary young man? It sounds like an undertaking of somewhat staggering magnitude!"

To Peter's surprise, Vincent responded to his smile with a half-shamed-faced but wholly natural laugh.

"You know, now that the first shock of her death is past, I can see myself how absurd it was! I'd be as helpless as ever. But now—well, I feel like somebody waking up from a long spell of delirium, waking up, weak but sane."

"It sounds funny when I'm on my way to jail accused of murder, but the way I feel inside is—free. As if I'd escaped from something outside myself that had held me. I can see just how crazy I was, to think I could take her out of her world into mine."

"Do you think it was just a pose—the cult business?" Peter asked the question, not so much for what he could learn concerning Luna as for what the answer would reveal of Vincent's own character and knowledge.

Vincent considered the question carefully.

"On the surface it was. It was a means of making money out of fools—and the money itself didn't matter so much as the sense of power it gave her. She gloried in the consciousness of other people's weakness. She gloried in it so much that she could not see that she was dangerous. And yet—it wasn't all acting."

"She'd laugh at them, but there was something behind her laughter, something uneasy. The nearest I can come to it is to say that I think she really believed in some personified force of evil. She thought she had deliberately placed herself on the devil's side and had sold her soul for power."

"Under all the hoos-pocus, she made you feel that there was something dark and stupendous and real. I may be mistaken, perhaps she was just fooling me, but when I had those glimpses, too, when I had those glimpses of her, I think if there was any bedrock of the genuine about her, it was there. It was a kind of self-justification, you know."

"She'd paid the price to get what she wanted, and it gave her the untrammeled right to go after it—to play the fools to the top of her bent."

"Um-hum." Peter granted a thoughtful assent. "A pretty good blanket dispensation for conspiracy."

"The way a life ends isn't accidental. It has to follow, somehow, on the form that life has taken."

Vincent nodded.

"You're right there," he said. "Terrible as it is, there's a ghastly appropriateness in it. The mystery, the violence. Luna was not like any one else. She would not even die like anyone else."

The words were solemnly spoken, but there was a bitter cynicism in the twisted smile that accompanied them.

"You didn't actually believe in all that witchcraft dope, did you? Somehow I can't see you going in for black magic," Peter remarked.

Vincent flung himself back against the pillows.

"I don't know why I should think I ought to be polite about her because she's dead," he said with sudden resolution. "Good news, I didn't admire her. I even had the crazy idea that I could save her, if she'd let me."

"I wasn't blind. I hadn't any illusions—except the one illusion that I—I, a perfectly ordinary kid—could influence a woman like Luna and make her over. I wasn't such a fool, either. I could see that the influence was 'Good news, I didn't admire her. I even had the crazy idea that I could save her, if she'd let me.'"

"It sounds funny when I'm on my way to jail accused of murder, but the way I feel inside is—free. As if I'd escaped from something outside myself that had held me. I can see just how crazy I was, to think I could take her out of her world into mine."

"Do you think it was just a pose—the cult business?" Peter asked the question, not so much for what he could learn concerning Luna as for what the answer would reveal of Vincent's own character and knowledge.

Vincent considered the question carefully.

"On the surface it was. It was a means of making money out of fools—and the money itself didn't matter so much as the sense of power it gave her. She gloried in the consciousness of other people's weakness. She gloried in it so much that she could not see that she was dangerous. And yet—it wasn't all acting."

"She'd laugh at them, but there was something behind her laughter, something uneasy. The nearest I can come to it is to say that I think she really believed in some personified force of evil. She thought she had deliberately placed herself on the devil's side and had sold her soul for power."

"Under all the hoos-pocus, she made you feel that there was something dark and stupendous and real. I may be mistaken, perhaps she was just fooling me, but when I had those glimpses, too, when I had those glimpses of her, I think if there was any bedrock of the genuine about her, it was there. It was a kind of self-justification, you know."

"She'd paid the price to get what she wanted, and it gave her the untrammeled right to go after it—to play the fools to the top of her bent."

"Um-hum." Peter granted a thoughtful assent. "A pretty good blanket dispensation for conspiracy."

"The way a life ends isn't accidental. It has to follow, somehow, on the form that life has taken."

Vincent nodded.

"You're right there," he said. "Terrible as it is, there's a ghastly appropriateness in it. The science. She'd put herself on the side of evil and had a free hand thereafter. Neat solution to the conflict of an ingrained religious temperament and an ego that wanted to sit on top of the world and ride high above over anybody in the way."

"She was bound to find a way to reconcile them somehow, because both of them were equally real. She'd have made a great actress, or a grand courtesan, or a politician, if the way had been open to get power in those ways."

"Being the daughter of an impoverished preacher, she had to cut her channel where she could. But I'm a little surprised that the poor slaps who believed in her as an authentic witch gave her enough scope."

"They didn't," Vincent caught his breath sharply as if he regretted the hasty words.

Peter waited, his cocked eyebrow a silent interrogation.

"Look here, son," he said at last, with a paternal air that contrasted oddly with his youthful face. "You've been nicely brought up not to say unpleasant things about ladies—even ladies who think they've sold their souls to the devil. But this is a murder, and murder isn't a polite occupation."

"But it's only guess work. I'm not certain—"

"This isn't the witness stand, and my testimony is a bluff. If nothing comes of it, I'll keep it strictly to myself—you can depend on that," Peter urged.

"It sound as if I were trying to get myself out of a jam by throwing mud on somebody else. It's only suspicion, anyhow. That's understood?"

"Perfectly." Not many men under the charge of murder, Peter reflected, would be so cautious about throwing suspicion on others. It might be, of course, that Vincent knew his suspicions could not point to the real murderer. But looking into the frank, ingenuous face which appeared even more boyish than usual beneath the tumbled, sleep-rumpled hair, Peter was inclined to view with disapproval his own excess of skepticism.

RONALD COLMAN AT FOX-BROADWAY SUNDAY

"Sins Of Madelon Claudet" At West Coast Sunday

OUTCAST STORY SHOWS STAR IN NEW TYPE ROLE

Recklessly adventurous rather than romantic, Ronald Colman comes to the Fox Broadway theater Sunday in "The Unholy Garden," as Samuel Goldwyn's first screen presentation of the year.

For the first time in two years, Colman is no longer the suave, polished English gentleman. Instead, he is an outcast and a renegade, hiding out with a dozen other refugees from the law in a strange outpost at the edge of the Sahara. Disheveled and unshaven, hair tousled and clothes mussed, he is a sharp contrast to the immaculately groomed hero of "The Devil to Pay," "Raffles" and "Bulldog Drummond," his earlier pictures for Mr. Goldwyn.

Estelle Taylor and Fay Wray have the principal feminine roles. As the wanton voluptuary of the story, Miss Taylor has the biggest part since her memorable appearance in "Cimarron." Miss Wray is the protected daughter of the embittered recluse, hiding at the inn.

An extraordinary gathering of character players appears as "the family," the exiled criminals whose plottings and schemings give such animation to the yarn. Warren Hymer, Tully Marshall, Lawrence Grant, Ullric Haupt, Kit Guard, Henry Armetta and Mischa Auer are among the thespian menaces of the yarn.

It is there, in Orage, that the odd assortment of crooks, adventurers and murderers gathers to plot the capture of the old baron's hidden plunder. By fair means or foul, they planned to force the secret of the hiding place from the recluse and his daughter. Barry Hunt (Ronald Colman), pursued by an alluring spy for the police (Estelle Taylor), appears to propose skill and trickery instead of violence. Through the baron's daughter (Fay Wray) Barry begins his work.

NEW STAR BORN

Patrons of the Fox West Coast theater will immediately hail Helen Hayes as a new star when they see her work in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," which opens Sunday. In this scene with her is Lewis Stone, who has a prominent role.

Murder, wild desert rides, the excitement of life-or-death gambling, fast-like cunning as men match wits and brawn for fortunes or a woman's smile, the thud of the impact of fists and flesh—these are among the essential ingredients of Hecht and MacArthur's lurid yarn.

It is the first picture of this kind, or of such a background, that Ronald Colman has appeared in since he did "Beau Geste" four years ago.

YOUTHFUL PLAINTIFF WINS

BOSTON, (UP)—Joe Bruno, five, the youngest plaintiff ever to appear in federal court here, won his case despite his steadfast refusal to submit his chest as exhibit A. The boy, injured in an automobile accident, had sued for $20,000 damages. Though he would not display his chest injuries to the jury, he was awarded a $900 verdict.

POWERFUL NEW DRAMA BOASTS NEW CELEBRITY

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet," one of the most appealing pictures of the year, comes to the Fox West Coast theater Sunday for a three-day showing.

A new star, so far as pictures are concerned, makes her debut in the film and immediately is ranked with the best dramatic actresses of the screen by critics who have previewed the film.

She is Helen Hayes of the New York stage. Never before in pictures, this diminutive little actress walks right into the hearts of her audience immediately. Her personality is vivid, almost living, and the picture is only a few minutes old when the realization comes that a new and dramatic star has ascended.

The story concerns the life of a girl, her hardships, her mistakes and her sacrifices for a boy baby she did not want. The battles she has, the crimes she commits for that boy all through her life, make the plot one of the most satisfactory from an entertainment standpoint.

Lewis Stone has an important role in the film, but the plot, the direction—all is overshadowed by Helen Hayes, who is a combination of Ruth Chatterton and Ann Harding, so far as dramatics are concerned.

The plot resembles that of "Madame X." It is a story that will bring tears at times to women, and yet it is strictly a woman's show.

RUSSIAN STORY AT BROADWAY DYNAMIC FILM

She had to have a yellow ticket in order to go to her dying father, but a yellow ticket meant disgrace, degradation and a ban that would always be on her name.

This is part of the story of "The Yellow Ticket," now showing at the Fox Broadway theater, and by far the best picture that has been made by beautiful Elissa Landi. Lionel Barrymore, as usual, steals the show, however, long before it is over.

The story is laid in Russia at that time soon after the overthrow of the czar, when women were numbered to show their trade and the yellow ticket was given to the women of the streets. Jews were barred from travel, and Elissa, playing the part of a young Jewish school teacher, found herself in trouble the minute she took the ticket. Police everywhere, always checking up on her, until she meets a young British newspaper man. They fall in love, but the articles he is writing do not please the Russian police and plans are made to do away with him and the girl, from whom he has been getting his information.

The plot is dramatic, appealing and surprising at times. The direction is particularly good and the photography is the best. "The Yellow Ticket" has everything for good entertainment.

NEW TALENT IS SEEN IN LUKAS PICTURE HERE

Paramount introduces a new talkie personality in "The Beloved Bachelor," Paul Lukas' newest picture, which is now showing at the Fox West Coast theater.

The face that has never before been seen on the cutting room floor is that of Vivienne Osborne. And of course, the voice is hers too.

In "The Beloved Bachelor" she plays the part of Elinor Hunter, the actress who falls in love with Lukas, then forgets him, then comes back again.

Her beauty and talent and her fine work in theatrical productions in New York brought her to the attention of Paramount executives and resulted in her contract as a featured player.

Miss Osborne created the title role in "Aloma of the South Sea," which she later played in London for Belasco. She scored in "The Three Musketeers" with Dennis King about three years ago—and in other plays with William Faversham, Ernest Truex and Sidney Blackmer.

M. CHEVALIER GETS 'LOVE ME TONIGHT'

"Love Me Tonight," Alfred Savoir's story of a romantic but poor troubadour who falls in love with an heiress, will serve as Maurice Chevalier's second starring vehicle since his recent return from Europe. It is announced at the Paramount studios in Hollywood.

The production will mark the resumption of the star-director combination of "The Love Parade" and "The Smiling Lieutenant," for it will be directed by Ernst Lubitsch, who will supervise the star's first picture, "One Hour With You." Jeanette MacDonald, heroine of "The Love Parade," now en route to Hollywood from Europe where she has been appearing in concerts, will

The population of San Bernardino, California, was temporarily increased by 1200 persons this week when two motion picture units arrived on location from the Paramount Hollywood studios.

"Shanghai Express" takes more than 1000 for the scenes around the railroad station of that town. These included hundreds of extras and workers besides Director Josef von Sternberg, Marlene Dietrich, Clive Brook, Anna May Wong, Warner Oland and Eugene Pallette. "Sonky" is there for a three-week stay with 200 persons, since many of the extras will be hired in San Bernardino. Heading the group are Director Norman Taurog with Jackie Cooper, Robert Coogan and Jackie Searl.
